Seal Returns Ahead Of Last Year

Returns from this year's Christmas Seal Campaign show contributions are ahead of last year, according to John M. Lee, Campaign Chairman of the Central Virginia Tuberculosis & Respiratory Disease Association.

"With all the pressures of Christmas and other holiday preparations, people sometimes forget their Christmas Seal contributions," said Dr. Anthony J. Munoz, President. "But our health needs are greater than ever today. Any reduction in our planned programs for next year would be a serious disservice to the people in Central Va."

Dr. John T. T. Hundley said, "Unless we reach our goal it will be impossible to carry out the program planned to meet area needs. He said, "We plan to sponsor nursing seminars, provide scholarships to nurses and technicians in inhalation therapy. Funds will be needed for educational material and educational films for elementary, high school and college students. Funds will also be needed in order to continue supplying sanatorium care for patients with personal money, pajamas, robes, slippers and laundry.

"Tuberculosis has not been eliminated, he says, and there is a considerable amount of Tuberculosis in Central Va. There is also an urgent need to do research and other respiratory diseases."

Dr. Anthony J. Munoz said, "Approximately 40,000 reminders will be mailed from the office of the Association between Christmas and New Year's. He said, "For those who have already mailed their contributions in, this is a thank you note and for those who have not mailed a contribution in, it is a reminder to please do so."

Service, Professional workers at all levels work with a half million volunteer workers and junior leaders in constantly adjusting the 4-H program to serve the interests and needs of youth.

Regent On A Chain by Alistair MacLean—The author fashions this suspense story about a diamond ring in Amsterdam. The hero is an Interpol Narcotics investigator of the James Bond variety, and he is assisted by two young and attractive female employees. A good deal of mayhem and a fast chase sequence ensue.

4-H Activity Sponsored At Three Levels

Through a unique organizational structure, 4-H is cooperatively sponsored by the Extension Service at three levels of government. It is carried on at the county level by professional extension agents and a corps of volunteer leaders and advisers. Statewide, the 4-H program draws upon the resources of State Land-Grant University for additional resources and direction. Nationally, the U. S. Department of Agriculture, administers the program as the junior phase of the Extension 522 to 500 killing 582. Colonel Burgess observed here that this type of crash almost inevitably rises from excessive speed, drowsiness or drinking.

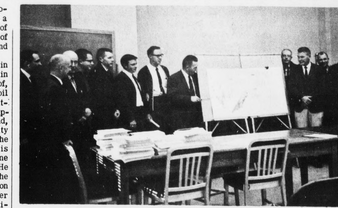
Urban deaths were down from 315 to 292 but rural ones rose from 903 to 1,009. Deaths of servicemen dropped from 73 to 55. Motorcycle deaths continued to drop sharply from 47 in 1967 to 36 in 1968 to 16 in 1969.

Virginia saw 756 deaths in 1960, 856 in 1961, 974 in 1962, 989 in 1963, 1050 in 1964, 1062 in 1965, 1,106 in 1966, 1223 in 1967 and 1,218 in 1968.

Consultation Can Save $$$ For Growers

How to increase timber production was chief topic of a meeting Thursday afternoon of professionals in the fields of agriculture and woodland management.

Speakers at the conference in the VPI extension office, Main Street, included L. W. Kempf, forester with the USDA Soil Conservation Service, He pointed out that about 73% of Appomattox County is in woodland, much of which is low quality hardwoods. "About 78% of the soil in Appomattox County is better suited for growing pine than hardwood," he said. He then went on to explain that the role of the Soil Conservation Service is to promote proper land use. Based on soil investigations and forestry research, he displayed data which showed some soil in the county canable of producing good quality hardwood or pine. The majority of the land in Appomattox County is incapable of producing good quality hardwood. It was pointed out that nearly every farm has some areas along streams, etc. that can grow good hardwood. Hardwood has been badly mismanaged and it is very difficult to improve a poor quality stand or plant hardwood. Where a good stand of quality hardwood exist, soil type is needed to determine if the land is capable of producing it to sawtimber size.



Soils Make Difference In Tree Growth

The map of Appomattox County tells the story as landowners and professionals in agriculture and tree growing look over a soil map indicating soil types and recommendations for tree planting. Attending a meeting on Woodland Management Thursday were (from left): Richard Lacks and James A. Smith, extension agents, agriculture; H. B. Pack, Vocational agriculture instructor; Warren Taylor, county forester, Robert McClenny, Jr., SCS; Jim Garner, Va. Division of Forestry; Joe Crockett, Westvaco; L. W. Kempf, SCS; John Goin, SCS; R. B. Parris, Continental Can Co.; David M. Smith, Chief Fire Warden; C. E. Price, R. S. Burrus Co.; and J. N. Jennings, ASCS.

James Garner, Assistant District Forester, Va. Div. of Forestry, discussed management practices that will help the soil produce up to its potential. He stressed the need for management assistance before harvesting so the area could be cut at the proper time. "If the area is cut at the proper time, it can be burned for a few dollars per acre; drumchopping or bulldozing cost several times more", Garner added. He emphasized that harvest cutting should be made in blocks small enough to be reforested. He pointed out that the Va. Division of Forestry can give free consultative service to woodland owners.

In summarizing the meeting, District Conservationist Robert McCleun, Jr., SCS, stated that a few copies of the Woodland Resources Study will be made available for those needing it. "The main purpose of our meeting is to stimulate better woodland management based on the capability of the soil", he said. He concluded, "Now that we all have a common understanding of our forest potential, we can better consolidate our efforts to improve woodland in Appomattox County".

Among those attending were Richard Lacks, extension agent, agriculture; James A. Smith, extension agent, agriculture; H. B. Pack, vocational agriculture instructor; Warren Taylor, county forester, Va. Div. Forestry; Robert McClenny Jr., District Conservationist, SCS; James Garner, Assistant District Forester, Va. Div. of Forestry; Joe Crockett, Westvaco Co.; L. W. Kempf, Forester, USDA Soil Conservation Service; John Goin, Appomattox County SCS; H. B. Parris, Continental Can Co.; David M. Smith, Chief Forest Warden, Appomattox; C. E. Price, R. S. Burrus Co.; and J. N. Jennings, Appomattox County ASCS.
